

12pm

Peer at the Purcell Gallery

Ludmila Korol's piece, above, resides in good company among other equally extraordinary painted and sculpted pieces, purcellgallerykenmare.com.

1pm

Lunch at Jack's

Just five minutes outside Glenbeigh (and on the Ring of Kerry route) is your lunch spot, Jack's Coastguard Restaurant. Tuck into the freshest fish dishes, all in the surroundings of a quaint converted 1866 coastguard station, jackscromane.com.

3pm

Brave the Blaskets

If you dare. Take the Sleat Head drive from Dingle and go the "long way round" through Ventry and past Páidí Ó Sé's pub. Suddenly, you'll come around a corner to the sight of the three Blasket Islands in all their glory. Down in Dunquin, you can take a boat from the pier to the Great Blasket, where the echoes of Peig Sayers still ring around the deserted houses and stone walls, discoverireland.ie.

4.30pm

Gaze from the Lake Hotel

It's a famed Kerry bolthole and with good reason; the Lake Hotel has the most panoramic views of Killarney. Sit in the drawing room, with a cuppa, and take it all in. The sight from their window is exactly why they call it The Kingdom, lakehotelkillarney.com.

5pm

Pause at Pause Play

This Tralee vintage store is something special, laden with lamps, leathers, long boho dresses, quirky cool homewares, old records and bijou jewels. Owner and It girl Dominique Ammann will advise ... facebook.com/pauseplayvintage.

3.30pm

Tea and cake at Castlewood House

The boutique Dingle guesthouse run by Helen and Brian Heaton is a foodie favourite. The cosy spot serves hungry travellers in need of some good old fashioned Kerry hospitality nourishing visitors with their homemade bakes and breads, castlewooddingle.com.

2pm

Take in Inch

Make your way to Inch beach, where surfers, locals and those who have heard of the strand's breathtaking views (and have travelled from far and wide to see them for themselves) come together. PS, don't forget to pack your designer surfboard, above, chanel.com.

7.30pm

Sunset at Tigh TP

With a pint of The Black Stuff in hand, wrapped up in a blanket (or three), sit at the Tigh TP pub and take in the sunset over Smerwick Harbour. You'll be short of words (and you might even see Fungi) ... tigh-tp.ie.

2.30pm

Two scoops at Murphy's

Irish Brown Bread, Dingle Sea Salt and Irish Cream Liqueur are the flavours of the day at the ice cream parlour founded by New York brothers Kieran and Sean, murphysicecream.ie.

8pm

Unwind at The Europe

The five-star's slick suites and serene spa will have you rejuvenated in no time. It's a truly luxurious stay. The Killarney Mountains and Lakes lay outside your window, quite literally, make it easy to do absolutely nothing but revel in paradise found. Fashion lovers, in particular, might want to mark March 8 in the diary: The sixth annual Kerry Fashion Week Irish Fashion Industry Awards take place at The Europe. From gala dinners to designer showcases, it's the hottest ticket in town. See theeurope.com for all the fashionable details.